PLOTTING AGAINST THE UNIVERSITY.

A Bill Will Be Introduced at the Next Legislature to Withdraw the Appropriation.

Southern California Animosity and Alameda Connty Sore-headedness are Responsible for the Scheme.

The University appropriation voted by the last Legislature is in danger.

At the next meeting of the Legislature in 1899 two bills will be introduced affecting the appropriation.

The first bill will call for the repeal of the appropriation. It is deemed certain this bill will be defeated. The second bill which calls for the reduction of the appropriation to one half the present amount will then be introduced and a desperate attempt will be made to carry it.

It is a well known that many South of Tehachipi politicians are constitutionally opposed to the University and the opposition to the bill which was manifested in the last Legislature came largely from then.

After the passage of the bill this element was still dissatisfied, and at once set about to knock the measure out.

A certain Assemblyman who resides in Oakland and who voted for the bill, some time ago had a difference of opinion with the Board of Regents, and at once began to correspond with the Southern Californians, with the result that the above scheme was devised. The Assemblyman declares that if he goes back to the Legislature he will do all in his power to carry out the scheme.

This story is printed on the authority of J. M. Oliver of Berkeley who last year was a clerk in the Assembly.

EVIDENTLY A BIGAMIST.

The Woman Brown Deserted Was His Wife.

Despite the statement of his friends there seems to be a clear case of bigamy against "Detective" Brown who skipped out with wife No. 2, a few days ago. Brown's friends claimed the deserted woman was not his wife.

Yesterday however, she produced a marriage certificate that she and Brown were married at Fresno on June 1, 1891, by Justice of the Peace W. D. Crichton, with William S. Crawford, Mark Warser and A. K. Sheats as witnesses.

BERKELEY CLUB'S ANNIVERSARY.

Organization Has Been in Existance Twenty-Five Years.

The Berkeley Club celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its formation, at a banquet given in the Unitarian Church parlors Oakland, Thursday evening.

Ladies were present for the third time in the history of the club, and added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

Colonel Greenleaf and John R. Glascock acted as hosts of the evening. The charter members of the club, W. C. Bartlett, President Martin Kellogg, Professor Joseph Le Conte and Rev. Dr. Moore of the Pacific Theological Seminary, were seated at the table.

After dinner, the guests adjourned to the large reception room, and Mr. Glascock, acting as master of ceremonies, introduced W. C. Bartlett, who read a paper treating of the history of the club.

He was followed by Professor Joseph LeConte, who read a witty and interesting paper on the club's history from a scientific standpoint.

Waren Olney read the principal paper of the evening, which was on the subject of "Suffrage."

"CALENDAR OF THE DAYS" CANTATA.

A Very Pretty Affair In Sisterna Hall Last Evening.

Faithful Representation Of The Various Months Of The Year.

The Cantata "Calendar of the Days," given by the Epworth League of West Berkeley M. E. Church at Sisterna hall last evening was a pronounced success from every standpoint.

During the course of the Cantata each day of the week was appropriately represented—the day of worship, washing day, ironing day, house cleaning day, etc., February—St. Valentine's Day, by Johnnie Turner and Winnie Bretts. Washington's Birthday by Johnnie Turner and Misses Winnie Bretts, Schia Hanson, Ethel Bennett and Elsie Crow.

March—Longfellow's "A Rainy Day," recitation by Miss Minnie Imholz.

May—Miss Matilda gave a Memorial Day recitation, a funeral march was played and four little girls, Jeannette Young, Elsie Crow, Gladys Wheeler and Haste Cowan, represented the decoration of soldiers' graves.

June—Miss Gertie Turner recited "A Day in June," composed by her father, John Turner. A representation of the longest and shortest days in the year by C. M. Warner and little Marguerite Cowan. "To-day and Yesterday," was portrayed by Mrs Mason and Frank Heywood. The latter sang "Today," and Miss Dickieson sang "Yesterday."

July—Columbia in the person of Miss Gertie Turner occupied the center of the stage with little children at her feet, and a number of boys celebrated the Fourth of July by circling around Columbia discharging toy pistols. The chorus sang Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean, while the Flag was saluted by Miss Martha Wolff.

August—"Dog Days," were represented by Eddie Wheeler and his dog. A large thermometer representing 150 degrees, Fahrenheit was suggestive of the dog days.

September—"School Days" was sung by the children in chorus.

October—Miss Henrietta recited "Autumn Leaves" and Miss Wilkes rendered the solo, "October Days."

November—Thanksgiving Day—"The Pumpkin's Lament," by a number of small boys with jack-o-lanterns.

December—Christmas recitation by Bertie Dickieson and chant by the choir.

SHALL THE CITY BE BONDED?

In Interviews With Citizens Regarding an Important Measure.

Suggestions and Opinions As To the Proposed New Schools.

Followings is a list of interviews and opinions which the GAZETTE is publishing daily in regard to the advisability of bonding the City for $75,000 of which amount $60,000 will be expended for the purchase of a site and the erection thereon of a High School building, the balance for a site and the construction of a Grammar School at North Berkeley.

G. Sonntag—I am not opposed to the school bonds; in fact I will vote for them, but first I want to be sure that the work of building the schools will be done by Berkeley men.

E. J. Little—I will vote for the bonds, if the new High school is erected on Center street lot—the proper location.

Geo. C. Woodsum—I live within two blocks of one new school house and about four from another. My children are compelled to go a mile and a quarter to school. I am in favor of schools, plenty of them. We spent $20,000 for new buildings last year, and paid for it all at once. I am willing to have the same amount raised every year by special tax if the buildings are needed. I have never opposed any school proposition, but there ought to be some other method of obtaining a High School beside bonding.

BERKELEY WINS THE CARNOT DEBATE.

The Logic and Delivery of the California Boys Proved Too Much for the Stanford Debaters.

Charles E. Fryer, a Member of the Junior Class Awarded the Prize After Delivering An Able and Masterly Address.

Hundreds were disappointed in their expectation of hearing the intercollegiate debate between representatives of Stanford and California in Shattuck hall last evening. Long before the proceedings commenced every seat in the hall was taken and the aisles, hallways and stairs were crowded with people.

For the third successive year the University of California has won the Carnot medal which is offered by Baron Pierre de Conbertin. Charles E. Fryer of the class of 99, a son of Professor John Fryer, head of the department of Oriental Languages in the University won the day for California.

Upon the platform were President Martin Kellogg, Professor F. V. Paget, Laurant De la Lande, French Consul at San Francisco; the judges, Sheldon G. Kellogg, Chas. A. Murdock and Chas. P. Eells, and the debaters.

The speakers in their order were as follows: A. H. Suzzallo of Stanford, affirmative; A. J. Dannebaum of California, negative; Charles E. Fryer of California, affirmative; A. B. Morgan of Stanford, negative; Miss Anna Trunsky of Stanford, affirmative; and George Clark of California, negative.

The question was "Resolved, That in the light of experience a further extension of the French colonial system would be impolitic."

Suzzallo of Stanford cited the timidity of French capital and the expense of maintaining Algiers, in opposition to extension.

A. J. Dannebaum of California followed, taking the position that France is a colonizing nation; "the Norman stock gave this spirit to her and her national needs demand colonies."

Chas. E. Fryer, the winner of the medal was the next speaker. He displayed a ripe scholarship and a beautiful oratory which evidently won the contest for him.

A. B. Morgan of Stanford was one of the most eloquent speakers, but was outclassed in argument by Fryer.

Miss Anna Trunsky of Stanford thought colonization a delusion and a snare, and contrary to the wishes of the French people.

George Clark of California was the last speaker. He spoke particularly to the commercial and industrial phase of the subject.

Each of the speakers were allowed five minutes rebuttal speeches, in which to answer arguments of their opponents. Fryer's rebuttal was clever, turning the pith of Morgan's argument in favor of the affirmative, and displayed a keen insight into French politics.

Morgan became quite eloquent in answer to Fryer's incisive argument, but the latter had too firmly established his position for it to have any weight.

The judges then retired and in a few minutes returned, Chas. A. Murdoch announcing the unanimous decision in a very witty speech and California's victory was celebrated in the usual style of the collegians.

This was Fryer's third attempt to win the medal. The young man is editor of 99's Blue and Gold and a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity.

HALF WAY GROUND.

The managers of the Oakland Exposition are already preparing for this year's show, and they express the utmost confidence in its success. Of course, they count a good deal on the assistance of the people of Berkeley. Just why we should be expected to interest ourselves in the show is not easily apparent.

The men in charge of the affair are the ones most active in the present movement to destroy our autonomy to tranform Berkeley from its present position as one of the famous university cities of the world into an insignificant suburb of a municipality famed for nothing but its silurianism and crankism.

Nevertheless we are willing to meet our neighbors on half way ground. Let them abandon their vain but irritating efforts to annex us. Change the name of the fair to "Alameda County" Exposition and give Berkeley proper representation on the Board, Then we will do our share toward making the Exposition a success. Otherwise the show, as far as Berkeley is concerned, will be as frosty as an Arctic winter.

THE FLOWER SHOW.

The amateur flower show which will be held during the latter part of April by the Berkeley Floral Society, is deserving of the active support and co-operation of every resident of this city it, matters not what degree of interest he takes in the cultivation of Nature's beauties.

The Floral Society is one of the most important of those of our organizations whose labors are of benefit to the community. Its ultimate object is the beautification of our already beautiful city, and to this end the members devote time and money.

What they have done is discernable in our gardens and along our streets. Largely through their endeavors the people of Berkeley have been educated to take a deeper and broader view of "Art for Arts' sake," and we venture to state that if our people take the proper degree of interest in this matter, Berkeley will become in every respect the most beautiful of all the beautiful cities along the Western Coast of America.

THE WORST OF CRIMES.

The outcome of the charges of fraud in the San Francisco School Board will be awaited with a good deal of interest. Every Board for years back has been somewhat more than suspected of crookedness but, if rascality existed, it was so well concealed that the offenders were in a position to court investigation with impunity. Director Waller however is placed in a situation from which he seems to have rather a poor chance of extricating himself with credit.

If proven guilty it is to be hoped his punishment will in itself be sufficient to deter other members of School Boards from following his example. He who causelessly takes human life, is required to forfeit his own. How much worse than the homicide is he who takes advantage of an opportunity to ruin the careers of hundreds of school children by placing incompetent and improper teachers in control of them, for the sake of money?

SUGAR CONSUMPTION.

The remarkable increase in the consumption of sugar in the United States during the past twelve months points to the field which the beet-sugar enterprise in this country has to fill. The sugar consumed during 1897 was 2,096,260 tons against 1,960,083 tons in 1896, an increase of 136,177 tons or 272,354,000 pounds. There were last year only 11,347 tons of beet sugar produced in the United States 289,000 tons of cane sugar, 5,000 tons of maple sugar and 300 tons of sorghum sugar, making a total of 236,650 tons of various kinds of sugar produced in the country, and leaving 1,760,607 tons to be imported, most of which comes from Europe. There is no doubt, however, but that from this time forward the annual increase in the beet-sugar product will be large and there is no reason why it should not finally include the entire amount now imported from Europe, and elsewhere.

Trifles Light As Air.

"Yes," said the young man, "I am wrapped up in my art."

"But," said the young woman, "I thought you were employed in a tailoring establishment."

"I am. I had this overcoat made under my personal direction."

"Come on," said one Corean savant to another. "Here's something for us to do."

"What is it?"

"You know, the King decided some time ago to promote himself to emperor."

"Yes."

"Well, he desires us to look up some more titles so that he can confer them on himself while there is yet time."

"I want you to make me a Newmarket coat," she said to the dressmaker.

"But it isn't the prevailing fashion to have lengthy wraps."

"I don't care. I am invited to a whist party and the gentlemen who is to be my partner told me to be sure not to forget my long suit."

SINCE THE TROLLEY'S COME TO TOWN.

Ring out the loud hosannas and do the job up brown,
For at last we have a trolley a-running through the town.
The farmers stop their haying and wonder at the sight,
For the way the cars go scooting is a revelation quite.
Their clanging and their buzzing all other noises drown,
For they make an awful racket a-running through the town.

The old town doesn't seem the same. It's mighty bright and gay,
And every one can celebrate its resurrection day.
'Twas buried many years ago, and buried good and deep,
But now it has awakened from its Rip Van Winkle sleep,
And every hour of the day the cars run up and down,
And every one is tickled now the trolley's come to town.

There's two new barns a-going up, excitement everywhere,
And a mild form of paresis seems to permeate the air.
The benefits to be derived have surely taken root,
While real estate has risen to fifteen cents a foot
And all the winnin folks have bought a brand new muslin gown,
For they're bound to cut a figure now the trolley's come to town.

—Hartford Times.

AN EERIE EPISODE.

It was at a masquerade at Galimberti's studio in one of the old Roman palaces. There were music, the tripping sound of dancing feet, laughter and the unintelligible hum of conversation mingled in a gay medley.

Carson, an American, a new arrival in the city and a stranger to that colony of sculptors and painters, had been accidentally separated from the friend who brought him in the crowd shortly after his entrance to the ballroom.

He was wandering listlessly among the merry maskers, quite regardless of their cling and disguise, in his expense. Tired at length of his aimless peregrinations, he turned aside from the glaring lights and heat to the shade and coolness of the balcony.

The wide casements at the end of the room were open and gave an unobstructed view of the kaleidoscopic scene within. A divan near the balustrade offered a place for repose, but it was not until he was seated that he was aware of the presence of a lady. She occupied the farther end of the divan and was partially concealed by the drooping tree ferns and palms with which the balcony was decorated. She moved slightly in her nest of tricolored cushions, and her fan fell with a slight clatter upon the stone floor.

Carson picked it up and gave it to her with a courteous bow. She thanked him, speaking in English, with just the slightest Italian accent.

"I fear that I am intruding, signora," he said.

"Not so. The balcony is free to all who come. There can be no intrusion."

She reached up her hand as she spoke and pushed aside the feathery branches that swayed between them. Then he saw that she was young and very fair to look upon.

Her face was decidedly English. She wore an indescribable swathing garment of soft texture that was gathered up closely about her neck and fell to her feet in long, clinging folds, strongly suggestive of a Bernhardt costume. Two beautifully shaped arms were bare to the shoulder and the small hands that lay in her lap looked as though they had been modeled in wax.

She leaned back, resting her head upon the stuccoed pillar, her fan waving languidly to and fro.

"Permit me," said the American, taking the dainty lace and ivory trifle from her hand and fanning her gently. She smiled a gracious assent, and then began talking.

It was so warm in the ballroom and one grew so tired dancing, she said. Did the gentleman dance? Perhaps he was not acquainted with many ladies—a stranger in Rome? Was he an artist or a sculptor?

"Neither, signora. I am an attache."

"From what country—England?"

"No. America."

"America! Ah, that marvelous land!"

She chatted on in an open, friendly manner until a bevy of tired dancers invaded their retreat. Among them was his friend Tarro.

"Great heavens, Carson! Where have you been? I have looked everywhere for you. Everybody is unmasking, and it is time for supper. No doubt you are starving. Come, I have secured a table, and you are to meet some charming women. What have you been doing here all alone? It was exceedingly stupid in us to get separated."

"I have not been alone," replied Mr. Carson. He glanced around, but the lady was gone.

"Not alone? Why, who was with you?"

"The lady. Did you not see her when you came?"

"A caprice, my dear boy. I saw no lady. No, you sat there mooning, staring in a most sentimental manner at that Moorish lantern hanging over there. Come along. They are waiting for us."

They lingered long over their supper. There were merry, high pitched talking and much laughter, but Carson was not in a state of hilarity. His restless, bored glance wandered over the assembly, and once he started and turned sharply in his chair at the low voice of a woman who, with her escort, passed close beside him.

Tarro tried to rally him on his abstraction, but his brow contracted fretfully, and he nervously fingered a spray of flowers that lay by his plate. He was not sorry when the ball was over and he found himself on the pavement outside of the palace.

A cab was waiting, but without knowing why he declined to accompany his friend, saying he preferred to walk to his hotel. He sauntered along slowly, with bowed head, absently staring at the dim shadows cast by the waning moon. As he was passing across the Piazza de Farnese he heard a low voice speaking:

"So we meet again!"

He halted. She, his new acquaintance, was beside him.

"Signora! You here at this hour and alone? Where are your friends?"

She smiled. "You will walk with me to the street below, will you not?"

"Certainly. But your friends—their carelessness is criminal."

They walked through the square and down several streets almost in silence. Presently she stopped before the entrance of a house.

"Here, signor!" she said.

Almost simultaneously she swayed forward and caught his arm, at the same time uttering a smothered cry.

"You are hurt!" he exclaimed anxiously. "You have twisted your ankle on those wretched stones."

"I fear so." She pressed her hand upon her bosom and looked into his eyes with mute appeal.

"You cannot walk." He stooped and gathered her up into his arms. "I will carry you. Which floor?"

"The fourth," she replied, her face flushing as the light of the early day fell upon it.

A drowsy janitor answered his ring. He ascended the first flight of stairs without pausing, carrying her as a nurse might a child, happy at the delicious touch of her bare arms against his neck as she clasped him.

On the second flight ascent was not so easy. Her weight grew heavier, and the head that had now fallen on his shoulder pressed like a ball of iron, her arms were relaxing their clasp and lay against his neck with startling coldness. She seemed to be letting herself go, and at each step grew heavier in proportion.

He was no longer carrying a lissome maiden, but something burdensome and horrible—something that was bearing him down and suffocating him with a sensation as though his chest was bursting.

On the third landing he felt her slipping.

"Signora," he faltered.

He sought to renew his hold, but the burden, now a dead weight, slid from his arms, and she fell with a heavy thud to the floor.

"What noise is this?" called a masculine voice in Italian.

Carson began a hasty explanation to the man, whose head protruded from a partially open door.

The man came toward and bent over her.

"She does not belong here," he said. "She is a stranger. She is pale as death. Unfasten her clothing. She must have fainted. Where is the janitor? The fool! He never is here when he is needed. Call him, signor, and send for a physician." His hasty hand broke the knot of ribbon that confined her bodice. With a wild exclamation he instantly loosened his hold on her dress and started backward. The full throat and white bust were exposed. There were deep bluish purple bands around the throat and a gaping dagger wound, dark with coagulated blood, on the snowy bosom.

Their cries aroused the janitor, who hastened to call the police. Presently he returned, panting up the stairs, accompanied by an officer. Carson drew aside the curtain, and the bright light of day fell upon the body.

"Holy Virgin!" cried the policeman as he saw the dead woman.

"Can you identify her?" asked Carson.

"Yes," returned the man. "She is the woman who was found murdered on the Corso night before last. How came she here?"—M. M. Ballin in Argonaut.

Hebrew Texts of the Old Testament.

The most ancient Hebrew manuscript of any part of the Bible is in St. Petersburg and dates no earlier than the tenth century. More than 2,000 copies of the Hebrew Old Testament have been compared, and very few variations have been found. This is accounted for by the fact that from the time when the Hebrew canon was formed, and even before that time, very strict rules were laid down for the scribes who copied the Bible. The lines and letters were counted, and each copy had to correspond precisely with the one from which it was taken. They calculated, for instance, that there were 5,245 verses in the Pentateuch, 22,206 in the whole Bible and 78,100 letters in Genesis. All of these rules and calculations were called the Massorah tradition, and about the tenth century the college of rabbis of Tiberias, on the Euphrates, decided upon a standard Bible or "authorized version."

The Hebrew consonants alone had been written down up to that time, the pronunciation being a matter of tradition. Now a system of vowel signs was devised, fixing the sense in many instances. The vowels are just as important in Hebrew as in English; so it is easy to see how necessary this reform was. The English consonants b r d may be read board or bread, or bored or braid, and if they occurred in a sentence without the vowels we should have to guess by the connection which vowels were necessary. It is possible that after a text had been adopted all older manuscripts were destroyed, or more probably were neglected because of their defects, and hence they have altogether disappeared.—Review of Reviews.

Trees and the Air.

According to a reliable computation, a single tree is able through its leaves to purify the air from the carbonic acid arising from the respiration of a considerable number of men—as many as a dozen or a score. The volume of carbonic acid exhaled by a human being in the course of 24 hours is estimated at 100 gallons, and a single square yard of leaf surface, counting both the upper and under sides of the leaves, can decompose about a gallon of carbonic acid in a day.

THE MINING FAIR

AT

MECHANICS' PAVILION

Saturday, January 29 to Saturday, March 6, 1898

OPEN FROM 2 TO 10:30 P. M.

The 50th anniversary of the discovery of gold in California will be not only fittingly celebrated by its Golden Jubilee, but by one of the grandest and most complete exhibitions of mining and outfitting ever seen in the world. This Fair will possess the merits of originality, instructive and practical features.

There will be a mammoth pictorial and genuine representation of a hydraulic mine in operation; every modern piece of machinery used in all forms of mining in operation; complete display of ores, minerals, and soil formations, and many novel mining experimental features shown for the first time at this Mining Fair.

The natural resources of California will be shown in the big exhibit of the State Board of Trade; and many official and private collections and exhibits of ores and minerals will give added interest to this wonderful Exposition.

The history of our State will be fittingly and graphically outlined by exhibits of relics, curios, photographs, paintings, books, papers, etc., all kindly loaned by societies and individuals. This feature of the Fair is worth special attention, and the management solicits other loans, where possible. The exhibit of the State Mining Board will also prove interesting.

The Klondike Outfitting Department possesses interest beyond the ordinary, for the majority of food products, evaporated fruits, vegetables, and the clothing, cooking utensils, means of transportation, etc., of miners' outfits as shown, are of California, and the moneys expended therefore remain not alone among our manufacturers and artisans, but aid and benefit the farmer and fruit grower. One half of the main floor is given over to this department.

The attractions besides those named are splendid band concerts, both afternoons and evenings, Klondike cooking lectures, free exhibition daily of Edison's Projectoscope, and new animated pictures illustrating Pacific Coast scenes, European views, Eastern moving pictures, Klondike scenes, comical views, with lectures, a Klondike wedding, Cornish miners wrestling matches, rock drill contests, international cake walks, baby shows, opening civic reception, living pictures, trips through the great underground tunnel, shaft and ore chambers, nationality days, school children's programs, State Press Association day, interior excursion days, in fact the special features and attractions will be new, novel, well carried out, and on a magnificent scale throughout.

The admission has been wisely fixed at the reasonable price of 25 cents; children, 15 cents; and the railways will make special excursion rates. These can be obtained by applying to your station agent. The various counties will make creditable exhibits, and every man, woman, and child in California has an interest in making this Mining Fair a success. The hotels in San Francisco will make specially low Fair rates, and these can be obtained by writing to the Hotel Committee, 31 Post street, also a list of hotels and boarding houses.

Don't forget the dates—Jan. 24th to 28th for Golden Jubilee Celebration and Jan. 29th to March 6th for Mining Fair.

Office, 31 POST STREET, San Francisco.
